A Game of Joyful Expectation

How would you like to transform your life and our world simply by playing a game? The game is called Looking For Light and here's how it works:

We keep our minds searching only for light, for good, for God in every situation and circumstance. What will happen very quickly is quite amazing. We begin to “see” God everywhere—in a beautiful sunset, the twinkling of dewdrops, sunlight on water, a child’s laughter, a mother’s loving gaze, a grandfather’s helping hands. Science has proven that our subconscious picks up 40 million bits of data per second. So once we desire to see only good, our subconscious begins scouting everywhere for proof and whatever we are looking for, we will find.

Playing the game quickly brings us into a state of joyful expectation. It brings us to a higher vantage point in which to “see” things. It raises our consciousness. The joy we feel radiates through our whole being. Through the natural laws of resonance and entrainment, it affects the quantum field around us. Our elevated vibration attracts the very good we are seeking and creates more good.

Can you imagine what our world would be like if everyone’s focus was held in joyful expectation for good to appear in every moment of every day? It would transform our world into one of peace and joy and love. All that needs to happen is for enough of us to play the game. Can we count on you? Come join us. It will change our world forever.

“To the illumined mind the whole world burns and sparkles with light.” ~Emerson

[Please note: the creators of this game freely give it to everyone to play. They ask that no individual or organization lays claim to it but that it remains for all mankind to use. The results in our world will be self-evident.]
